KEY

Articles are listed by title followed by the author's name, volume and page number.

Any correspondence appears in brackets as corr. followed by the names of correspondents, volume and page numbers.

Volume numbers appear first, then /, followed by the page number e.g. 1/142.

Introduction to the crumhorn repertoire, An Bernard Thomas 1/142 (corr. Jim Balmer 2/51, Shirley Baker 2/139, Angela M. Owen, J. F. Hanchet 2/265)

Articles are further listed by the author's name, though related correspondence appears only under the title heading.

THOMAS, BERNARD An introduction to the crumhorn repertoire 1/142

Articles relating to specific instruments are also listed under instrumental headings, i.e. crumhorn, harpsichord, lute etc. and show related corrrespondence.

Book reviews are listed by title, author and reviewer in brackets. The letters BR denote book review.

English Song, Dowland to Purcel Ian Spink BR (Peter Walls) 2/189

They are further listed under the author, then the reviewer

SPINK, IAN English Song, Dowland to Purcell BR (Peter Walls) 2/189

and

WALLS, PETER English Song, Dowland to Purcell Ian Spink BR 2/189

Under a contributor's name articles are listed first, followed by any books the contributor has had reviewed and finally books reviewed by the contributor. In the case of general headings, i.e. Harpsichord, Dance etc, articles are listed first followed by reviews.

All music reviews are listed together with the subheadings of anthologies, choral and vocal, instrumental, keyboard, lute and tutors. Reviews are listed by composer or title of anthology, then title of the composition followed by the reviewer's name in brackets. Music reviews are not cross-indexed.

Titles of articles are often abbreviated.

Scholarship

Scholarship and its relationship to performance is a fundamental concern. Each issue contains at least one important scholarly article.

Instruments

Leading instrument makers discuss their craft in articles and interviews. Practical advice on the purchase of instruments is given. There have been major historical studies of the renaissance flute, guitar and viol; the hurdy gurdy; early pianos and others.

Performance

A 'First steps' series has helped beginners on the cornett, crumhorn, dulcimer, serpent and shawm. Expert guidance on performing problems is a regular feature: troubadour and trouvère songs, the frottola, 15th-century chansons.

Historical background

Musicians and the general listener find background articles such as those on Couperin's L'Art de Toucher, C.P.E. Bach's Versuch, and the harpsichord revival, invaluable. Early music is set in its full cultural context.

Discovery

Everybody enjoys a discovery, whether of a lost manuscript, an early edition or a newly-found Vaudry harpsichord. Early Music has recorded a number of finds, from the missing altus part book of the Newberry set, to a unique 17th-century keyboard edition in the Auckland Public Library, New Zealand.

A worldwide forum

The correspondence columns deal with small and large topics – always internationally. From January 1978 onwards The Early Music Gazette (edited by Nicholas Kenyon) has given a lively synopsis of worldwide activity, informal but informative.

All enquiries for subscriptions, bound volumes and special offers for the five-volume set 1973-7, should be sent to the Journals Manager, Oxford University Press, Press Road, Neasden, London NW10 ODD, England. A specimen copy will gladly be sent on request.

Aspects of Early Music

WITH this cumulative index and the help of the annual indexes that appear each April, Early Music can be used as a continually expanding encyclopaedia of pre-classical music, instruments and performance practice. New subscribers are able to purchase bound volumes of earlier years, thus making up a complete set, a unique service to readers. As research progresses, some contributions are inevitably superseded, but many important articles and reviews can be found in the first five years. The advertisements, in themselves such a valuable and attractive feature of the journal, make a lively historical commentary on the way the phenomenon of the early music revival has developed.
